Trevoze is Listed As "Town of The Month"

"Trevoze, Pennsylvania" is listed as "The Town of the Month" in the August issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

The article is given over to activities of the Trevoze Horticultural Society which meets monthly in the Bucks County community. It tells how the horticultural society was born in front of a grocery post office, the aim being "to bring gardens into view of highways, to beautify the surrounding countryside, and to make a horticulturalist of every window-box owner in the neighborhood."

The manner in which some highways of Bucks County were beautified with dogwood trees by the members, the conversion of a swamp into a roadside garden, the planting of hardy trees on private property last year, and the flower shows conducted are woven into the article.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Events in the Near East, moving rapidly, justify large-scale military and economic assistance in that area, the House Committee on Foreign Affairs was told. Fifty invitations have been sent out for the signing of a peace treaty with Japan and a bipartisan delegation named to represent this country. Hope for further talks with the Soviet Union was voiced by Ambassador Jessup, while responsible persons in the capital professed to be surprised at criticism of the United States policy in Spain. It was announced that Madrid has received a $7,500,000 railroad loan.

Millions of dollars worth of American oil properties in Shanghai have been requisitioned by Communist military control authorities. The Peiping radio announced that all the seized assets would be paid for. In Teheran talks continued without a solution emerging. Iranian officials indicated a desire to discuss marketing with the British.

The great flood crest has poured into the Mississippi River, bearing down on St. Louis. General Pick, chief of Army Engineers, said in Washington that expected flood control projects could have contained the waters.

As the House drove toward a final vote on the defense production bill, members sitting as a committee of the whole voted to relax controls. Price Stabilizer DiSalle ordered relief for cannery. Other Administration spokesmen urged a tightening of controls.

Floodwaters Race Towards St. Louis, Mo., Over Farms

By Jack Estell
INS Staff Correspondent
ST. LOUIS, July 21 — (INS) —

Dike-smashing floodwaters raced relentlessly toward St. Louis today, pouring over homes and rich farm land in the Mississippi's greatest surge since 1844.

A predicted 40.5-foot crest is expected to batter the metropolitan center tonight. Towns within 20 miles already are flooded and hundreds of families have been driven from their homes.

Thousands of fertile acres in Illinois and Missouri flatlands were inundated when the combined waters of the Mississippi and Missouri spilled through breaches and over levees.

Flood-wise St. Louis carried on "business as usual." Most of the city is on high ground—and therefore out of immediate danger—but officials are taking no chances. Weakened dikes were reinforced with sandbags and authorities moved to safeguard the city's water supply.

The Missouri's giant crest completed its cross-state journey, leaving behind 1,500,000 acres of flooded cropland.

More than 50,000 acres were inundated near St. Charles, 15 miles north of St. Louis.

At West Alton—where the Missouri joined the Mississippi—the rampaging waters crumbled dikes and swirled through the town streets three feet deep.

EXHIBITS PRODUCTS AT BRISTOL TRUST CO.

All-Lite Metal Window Co. and Bristol Aluminum Co. Feature Display

HAS RAPID GROWTH

The All-Lite Metal Window Company and the Bristol Aluminum Company are currently displaying their products in the lobby of The Bristol Trust Company.

The All-Lite Metal Window Company, located on Emille road, specializes in the manufacture of aluminum residential casement windows, awning type aluminum windows, ranch type aluminum windows, aluminum jalouse windows, and aluminum screens and storm sash. These products have been in great demand on a national basis because of their attractive appearance, low initial cost, large variety of sizes, and types to suit all architectural needs. Painting is not required and the windows will not rust, rot, or deteriorate in any way, therefore, the cost of maintenance is at a minimum.

The Bristol Aluminum Company, recently organized, is unique because the extruding equipment used in the manufacture of aluminum shapes is the only installation of its type in the Eastern Pennsylvania area.

Solid aluminum billets 4½" diameter by 14" long are heated to 1,000 F. degrees and then placed in a huge hydraulic press, where under 1,000 tons pressure the metal is pushed through a die containing the desired shape, thereby forming an aluminum shape varying in lengths up to 100 feet. The aluminum extrusions manufactured by the Bristol Aluminum Company are used by many industries such as:

"FIRE DRILL" PROVES TO BE THE REAL THING

Pastor Quietly Informs The Scoutmaster That Church Is Struck by Lightning

QUAKERTOWN, July 21—When the Rev. Harry W. Fitting hurried to St. John's Lutheran Church, here, this week he quietly informed the Scoutmaster that lightning had struck the church.

"We haven't had a fire drill for some time," the Scoutmaster said to the Scouts. "Let's have one now." And the Scouts quickly and in an orderly manner filed out, unaware that this was the "real thing."

Mrs. Fitting, wife of the Rev. Harry W. Fitting, called the fire companies, and also informed her husband that the church was afire. The clergyman hurried to the edifice where the fire was smoldering in the chancel and organ loft, and gave the message to the man in charge of the troop.

Former Fire Marshal Raymond B. Strunk said the lightning followed a cable into the church, heated up one of the heavy electric cables leading into the organ so much that a large canvas cover was completely burned except for small patches.

These smoldering burning patches dropped down between the partitions on the first, or street-level floor, and Strunk said that given just a little draft they could have made the entire church a mass of flames.

No smoke was observed in the church auditorium, which is on the second floor, but it was between the partitions and ceilings, and coming out of the tall, beautiful spire.

Strunk, who was unable to estimate the damages, said water considerably damaged the pipe organ and organ loft.

Flames were visible only near the pulpit and in one of the rooms off the chancel.

"If that fire had smoldered about an hour or more or had just got one little bit of draft, Quakertown would be minus a church," said the former Fire Marshal.

The heavy electric wire leading into the organ was so hot that it started flames, or charred the wood wherever it came into contact with anything that could burn.

A large canvas cover, which was over the top of the organ in the organ loft to prevent it from getting wet, was so thoroughly destroyed that parts of it were difficult to find.

EXPLAINS SCORING OF CORPS CONTEST

How The Judges Will Mark Corps Competing at High School Field

A FINE EXHIBITION

In the drum and bugle corps competition next Saturday evening on the Bristol high school field, the scoring procedure will work opposite the general trend of thought in the minds of the spectators. Instead of building the score upward towards a perfect 100, the scoring is downward. Each corps starts with 100 points and this score is reduced for each demerit given for errors committed at the rate of one-tenth of a point per error. These points are divided into five major phases of judging, bearing the following weights:

Inspection, 10 points; Marching and Maneuvering, 30 points; Drumming, 25 points; Bugling, 25 points; General Effect, 10 points; Total 100 points.

Inspection — Each corps will be inspected from heel to hat, and may be charged for spots on the instruments or garments, missing a button, improper handling of colors, failure to stand at attention properly before the inspecting officer. Boys must have clean shaves and haircuts.

MARCHING AND MANEUVERING — While on the field, the corps will be under close scrutiny of judges looking for errors in drill, such as faulty alignment in ranks and files, poorly made pivots, irregular distances between ranks.

DRUMMING AND BUGLING — Judge of this phase of the contest will listen for harmony, rhythm, attacks, releases, expression and tone qualities. They will also observe the execution of the instruments; that is, bringing bugles into position.

PEACE TALKS

UN TRUCE CAMP NEAR KAESONG — Red delegates, faced with a "take it or leave it" agenda, today obtained a three-day recess in the Korean truce talks and the top Allied negotiator flew to Tokyo presumably to confer with General Ridgway. The Communists tried and again failed to budge the Allies from their refusal to discuss at the Kaesong conference the withdrawal of United Nations and Chinese Red troops from Korea. The UN delegation insisted an adequate agenda (minus the foreign troop question) already has been agreed upon. It urged that the conferees immediately go on to arrange a cease-fire and speed the end of the Korean war. Nevertheless, the Allies reluctantly approved the long recess with a request that the talks be resumed as quickly as possible.

Traffic Law Enforcement Failed to Reduce Deaths

By Al Spivak
INS Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, July 21 — (INS) — Accelerated enforcement of Pennsylvania's traffic safety laws failed to reduce deaths on highways during the first half of 1951.

The State Highway Safety Bureau reported today that 689 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents on public roads and the Pennsylvania turnpike during the six months, an increase of 21 over a comparable period last year.

A 49 per cent mid-year increase in license suspensions and a 25.6 per cent boost in revocations was reported for 1951 by the bureau.

The National Safety Council has informed the bureau that 654 people died on public roads since January 1—a gain of 13 over the comparable period of 1950.

Deaths in accidents of the Pennsylvania turnpike totaled 35 at mid-year against the 21 in the same period last year, according to the bureau.

A routine five-months report issued by the bureau reflected an 18 per cent increase in rural traffic deaths and an eight per cent decrease in urban fatalities.

A total of 253 rural and 212 urban fatalities were reported up to June 30, 1951.

Thirty-five counties showed increases in deaths for the first five months. Allegheny led with 11 additional fatalities while Dauphin county had a saving of 18 lives.

Licenses of 29,676 drivers were suspended during the first half of 1951 while 1,690 were revoked.

This compares with 13,876 suspensions and 1,346 revocations in mid-1950.

The bulk of the suspensions were for speeding—12,762 through June 30 this year compared with 8,972 at the same point last year. Violators of Pennsylvania's 50-mile-an-hour speed limit lost their licenses under a mandatory 90-day suspension if convicted.

Drunken driving brought the greatest number of revocations, the bureau reported. Attempting to flee the scene of accidents and driving stolen cars also resulted in permanent losses of licenses.

Convictions for drunken driving and speeding have shown a steady rise over recent years, according to the bureau, as a result of more stringent enforcement.

Despite the fact that this year's traffic death rate showed a six-months increase over the equivalent period last year, it still is far below that of two years ago.

"IN THE SHADE..."

Unlike some composers of popular songs, who can't read music and pick out tunes with one finger, Egbert Van Alstyne, of Chicago, studied music on the professional level. To his natural talent he brought training.

Whether this makes for catchier popular melodies is a matter of opinion. It did so in the case of the late Vincent Youmans, who wrote "Tea for Two," and it serves well in the case of Richard Rodgers of "South Pacific" fame, whose librettist is Oscar Hammerstein II.

Van Alstyne, dead at 73, teamed up with Harry Hall, and the two produced a prodigious hit in 1905—"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree." This was a waltz with words of dripping sentiment, which swept the land. No church social was complete without a solo rendition of this number, which assumed extreme status when it was parodied.

Some other hits, before and after, from this team were "Nava," "Back, Back, Back to Baltimore," and "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark." There is still a catchiness about these numbers, all of which were written before Irving Berlin wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band" in 1911, which began the craze for ragtime, the end of which, in its various transformations, is not in sight.

LACKS ONLY A MOTOR

When father was a boy a bicycle was a simple matter: two wheels in a frame and adjustable handle bars. For those with indulgent and prosperous parents there might be that marvel of marvels, the coaster brake. But look at the thing today. A gear shift which provides three speeds, including a low for climbing. Front and rear wheel brakes, chain guard and mud guards, electric riding lights, built-in parking rack, emergency tool kit and a tire pump. And all for a price not too much higher than the machines of a generation ago.

There's no reason why the bicycle should not have been improved and at least one good reason why the improvement should include two-wheel brakes. In dad's time the cyclist skidded about the streets menaced by nothing faster than a street car. The few automobiles proceeded at a cautious 15 miles an hour and the rest of the vehicles were horse-drawn. Except on the quietest of suburban streets, today's young biker rides with death, which makes it more exciting, but certainly calls for good brakes and vigilance.

It is not anomalous that rapid expansion in the number of automobiles should be accompanied by an increase in the number of bicycles. Mobility is one of the prime objectives of all age groups and for those too young for drivers' licenses the bicycle is the next best thing. The bicycle is generally cast aside when age brings eligibility for motor vehicle operation, a transition that does nothing to ease the anxiety of a nervous mother.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

It's An Economic War

Washington, July 21.

Among thoughtful men here the international developments of the last few weeks have greatly strengthened the long-held view that Russia has no intention now of making military war on us. This does not mean we should proceed on any other theory than that her purposes are intensely hostile and malignant, or that we can afford in any way to relax our effort to become militarily powerful.

It does mean that while we are now engaged in a war with Russia it is an economic war, and that unless precipitated into it by unforeseen accident or incident the Russians have no notion whatever of making it a general shooting war. This is the conviction not only of some of our ablest military men but of some of our most experienced diplomats. They base it on several reasons, chief of which is that it would be extremely stupid for the Russians to permit the present tensions to develop or drift into a general war. While the Kremlin leaders have been called a good many things, the charge of stupidity has not often been made. The argument runs that they know, first, that they could not win a general war against us and the rest of the free world; second, they know they easily might lose it. The risk is much too great. They would be insane to take it, especially as their success in the economic war would be as devastating to the United States as a military success and would bring to Russia all the fruits of a military conquest without losing a man.

On this subject, Mr. John T. Flynn in a recent broadcast declared, "The Soviet objective is to make us commit suicide. Her plan is to keep us pouring out our money for all sorts of things and in all directions until we bankrupt ourselves. And she can do just that. How long it will take I am not sure—at the rate we are going a few years would be sufficient. She could destroy the system of private enterprise in America without firing a shot. And if she does that she will have won the war." A great many persons, any-

We have failed to grapple realistically with the wage problem, with the farm problem and with the tax problem. More than a year ago the Baruch plan to prevent inflation was presented and almost unanimously accepted as sound. It was a five-point program—high taxes, rigid economy, ceilings over wages, food and rents. Mr. Baruch again and again pointed out that this program would not work if any part of it were ignored. All of it has been ignored—and it is perfectly clear that neither the President nor Congress has the simple courage to grapple with the big pressure groups who refuse to accept controls. So clear is this that many business men who strongly favored the Baruch program as a whole now oppose the controls on the ground that under present conditions they would create an almost intolerable confusion.

Not many men conversant with the facts can look on this situation without shame and alarm. It is a record of shocking inadequacy. It constitutes a terrific indictment of our system. The brains and character to make it function seem lacking at the top in both executive and legislative branches. We know the things that should be done. We know the peril involved in not doing them. But we just do not do them. It seems to make us out a nation of saps. Certainly it stands our rulers out as almost criminally incompetent. It is hard, indeed, to refute the charge that we are helping our enemy ruin us.

There is no reason why the bicycle should not have been improved and at least one good reason why the improvement should include two-wheel brakes. In dad's time the cyclist skidded about the streets menaced by nothing faster than a street car. The few automobiles proceeded at a cautious 15 miles an hour and the rest of the vehicles were horse-drawn. Except on the quietest of suburban streets, today's young biker rides with death, which makes it more exciting, but certainly calls for good brakes and vigilance.

thing but isolationist and who in the main are favorable to the Truman foreign policies, nevertheless agree with Mr. Flynn about the possibilities of Russia winning her economic war and of the catastrophic results thereof. Regardless of the Russian war against us will continue until we come to our senses and stop helping Russia to ruin us.

There isn't much argument about what should be done. Few informed persons want to curtail defense expenditures or cripple the Marshall Plan. But sensible men in both parties, not on the Federal pay roll, are, at least publicly, in favor of controlling inflation. No man in public life from the President down would dare take any other position. No one disputes that control of inflation is essential to the national health and that without it our economic existence is threatened. Under these conditions it is almost incredible that no effective move should have been made. Yet in more than a year of acute crisis inflation has steadily gained. Living costs have gone up, governmental waste has increased and, though there is slight dispute that $5,000,000,000 could be lopped off nondefense expenditures without crippling any needed Government agency, no real step in that direction has been taken. On the contrary, the nondefense pay roll and nondefense costs daily mount.

We have failed to grapple realistically with the wage problem, with the farm problem and with the tax problem. More than a year ago the Baruch plan to prevent inflation was presented and almost unanimously accepted as sound. It was a five-point program—high taxes, rigid economy, ceilings over wages, food and rents. Mr. Baruch again and again pointed out that this program would not work if any part of it were ignored. ## Two Bucks Soroptomist Clubs Have Enjoyable Social Events

Two social events elicited the interest of two Bucks County Soroptomist Clubs this week.

Members of Bucks County Soroptomist Club, Doylestown, met at "Glenloch Manor," the home of Miss Verna McClary, Buckingham, Wednesday evening, for their annual picnic. There were 30 affiliates present, also about 20 members of the Trenton, N. J., club, and 15 from Hunterdon, N. J., chapter.

At the home of Mrs. A. N. Shea, Allentown, this week, Quakertown Soroptomist Club members enjoyed a buffet supper. This group has been extended an invitation by Perkasie Club to attend a covered dish supper August 8th at Willow Brook Farm. A guest at the affair was Miss Erma Guthrie, New York, N. Y.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Herman H. Doh, Pastor
Andalusia Baptist Church

Almighty God, we thank Thee for Thy Holy Word which is life and peace to those who read and believe it. If we have made the high choice of following our Lord, Thy Word will direct and sustain. Whatever befalls in the course of duty, it is there to confirm and uphold. May we ever live by its precepts that we may grow in grace and in the knowledge of Tim Who is the Living Word, the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Vote For The Bond Issue and Save $156,400!

Cost of financing $400,000 authority bonds ..... $272,900
Cost of financing $400,000 municipal bonds ..... $116,500
SAVINGS BY APPROVING BOND ISSUE ..... $156,400

A STATEMENT ON THE PROPOSED SEWER BOND ISSUE WHICH HAS BEEN AUTHORIZED BY BRISTOL BOROUGH COUNCIL and Approved by the Burgess

You have a general idea of the story of the Delaware River and how, since this valley was first settled, but especially in the past fifty years, it has deteriorated from a fine, natural stream filled with fish into an over-polluted, sluggish, sediment-laden stream that is a menace to health and a detriment to the community.

The people who live along the Delaware get part of their household and drinking water from the river. They likewise in the past have drained waste and sanitary sewage into it, some untreated and some inadequately treated.

Ponder a moment on the nature of sanitary sewage. It has only been in recent years that the public has been generally informed of the tremendous work which has been undertaken by the State to clean and rehabilitate the streams of Pennsylvania, including the Delaware River, but it is not a new thing.

Bristol Borough was the first Pennsylvania community in the Delaware Valley to set up a municipal sewage plant so as to treat the sewage before releasing it into the river. Working with the state authorities, various improvements in the plant were made by the Borough authorities. These provided primary treatment of the sewage. Now, in the state's stream-clearance program, the Borough has been ordered by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to prepare its sewage plant for secondary treatment.

Primary treatment removes only the settleable solids from the sewage and goes only 35% of the way. The additional treatment now required by the Sanitary Water Board is full and complete treatment going 85% of the way and removing not only the settleable solids from the sewage, but also the organic matter which is in solution.

The State notified the Borough of its program several years ago, but the effective date was delayed by various factors, including the post-war scarcities. Now the time has arrived when the Borough must act. The State has the power to enforce its decrees in this connection. This is not local. It is part of the total clean-up of the river. The State expects all of the local municipalities, including Bristol, to do their part. Bristol is only asked and required to take care of what it itself discharges into the river.

THE COST AND HOW IT IS PROPOSED TO PAY IT

On Tuesday, July 24, Bristol voters will be asked to approve a proposed increase in the bonded debt of the Borough in the amount of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000) for the purpose of paying the cost of alterations and enlargements in the present sewage plant, including the installation of the secondary treatment works.

Because it means a substantial saving in interest costs, the Bristol Borough Council contemplates amortizing the proposed loan over a period of twenty years. Investment banking experts advise us that 20-year bonds for this purpose can probably be sold at an interest cost of 1 and 7/8 per cent, while 30-year bonds probably would cost us 2 per cent. The extra fractional per centage cost of the 30-year bonds, applied to the 50-per cent longer time for amortizing the loan, represents a substantial increase in the cost of the loan.

Moreover, one of the big advantages of the 20-year issue as compared with the 30-year loan is the fact that the shorter-term bonds would permit us to re-build our borrowing capacity at a much faster rate, and be in a position to meet any new demands upon the Borough's credit without embarrassment.

The question arises—what will this debt mean to the average householder and homeowner in Bristol?

It is planned to pay the interest and retire the debt out of sewer rentals. A good deal of speculation has been going on to the effect that these new sewer rentals would be enormously high.

The truth is that the largest figure which has been discussed for the rentals is 40 PER CENT OF THE WATER BILLS.

You know how much water rent you pay. It is, incidentally, the same rent that was fixed when the Borough built its water plant more than forty years ago, and is one of the lowest water rents in the state. You know how much to per cent of it would be. Average water bills in the Bristol area run about $20 a year, so the new sewer rent would run about $8 a year.

A sewer rent of this size would yield approximately $35,000 annually of which $7,500 would be appropriated (in 1952) to the sinking fund for paying interest on the $400,000 bond issue, and the balance, $27,500, would be appropriated to the Health and Sanitation Committee of Borough Council for the purposes of paying the cost of maintenance, operation and repair of the sewer system, including contemplated increases in the cost of maintaining such system.

A sewer rent of $8 a year is very small, no matter how you go about measuring it. Sewer rents in other communities are mostly larger than that. As for cesspools, if you figure together the cost of constructing them and maintaining them, with the cost of keeping them clean, you will find that they average out to between Thirty and Eighty dollars a year.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF THE VOTERS DO NOT APPROVE THE PROPOSED BOND ISSUE?

The answer is simply that the sewage works will be built anyway. There may be some delay, but only briefly. AND THE COST WILL BE MUCH GREATER!

The State of Pennsylvania is forcing sewage treatment. It has compelled the coal mines to stop dumping their wash water into the rivers. It has compelled the industries to stop dumping untreated industrial waste into the rivers. It is now beginning to put pressure upon municipalities which have not started to do their share.

The State of Pennsylvania has the power under law to compel compliance. It is not going to back off. The State has gone too far with its stream-clearance to allow anything short of 100 per cent compliance when it comes to stopping the discharge of inadequately treated sewage into the Delaware River. Therefore the proposed sewer enlargements in Bristol will have to be made.

If the proposed bond issue fails short of approval, Borough Council will have no alternative but to proceed immediately with the formation of a municipal authority, and to issue authority bonds which do not require approval by the voters. Since the Borough has the borrowing capacity to do the work by direct loan, this would be unfortunate. It would cost, in interest, one-third more to pay off the loan in authority bonds than in the general obligation bonds during a 20-year term, and 37.5 more during a 30-year term.

However, the mere dollar difference in interest does not tell the whole story. General obligation bonds are retired on a regular and even schedule, whereas with the authority bonds very few are retired in the early part of the term, and an increasing amount until maturity. This means that in a term period of the same length, the average life an authority bond is longer than that of a general obligation bond.

Taking this into account, along with other factors having to do with the authority practices, it can be figured out that a $400,000 thirty-year bond issue, if handled through an authority, would cost a grand total of $202,400 in interest, compared with $114,000 for the general obligation bonds for the same period, or an excess cost of $88,400 for the authority, which is to say, 77.5 per cent more. Counting in other charges, the saving by the bond issue is $156,400 compared with use of an authority.

In addition, the Borough would lose control of its own sewage plant for the duration of the debt, under some circumstances might lose it forever. For example, the authority would have the right to fix salaries for its employees, and require the Borough to pay for them. The authority also would have powers of making enlargements, purchases, or undertaking new enterprises, which the Borough Council might find difficult to keep under control.

Some estimates are that, even under the best of management, the costs of administration and legal work under an authority would be tripled by comparison with direct borough management under a general obligation loan.

But even in the cases where the excess cost of the authority, figured on an annual basis, does not appear to be great upon first glance, it should be remembered that these add up to large amounts over a period of years. For example, in a recent authority project created in an amount almost the same as that of Bristol's contemplated bond issue, it was estimated that the administrative expenses would run $2100 a year, which amounts to a total of $63,000 in the thirty-year period which the authority will exist.

The simplest, safest, best and cheapest method of getting the sewer enlargements which the Borough will be forced to undertake is for the voters to approve the $400,000 bond issue which will be submitted to them at the primary election July 24.

playing position and uniform handling of drum sticks, etc.

GENERAL EFFECT - This judge does not observe from the field where the corps is performing, but usually selects a good point of observation in the stands among the spectators. He appraises the complete performance in the light of eye appeal, repertoire of music, difficulty of maneuvers and any special features presented by the corps.

Co-ordinated with the above five phases of judging is timing the length of performance on the field. In the junior event, each corps must perform at least 13 minutes, at which time a warning signal is given. They are allowed two minutes from the time of the warning signal to cross the finish line.

The time when the first playing group - not the color guard or the majorettes - crosses the finish line determines whether or not they "made it."

VACATION LUGGAGE

NEW YORK - (INS) - Vacation luggage can look better and be spared a lot of punishment with a protective coating of wax. Paste, liquid polishing or cream wax not only will protect leather from sun, wind and rain but will improve its appearance and help keep the leather pliable. It also will help guard against scuffs. Wax should be spread thinly with cheesecloth, according to Johnson's Consumer Service, and worked into the leather in small areas at a time.

CHOICE HAMS

NEW YORK - (INS) - Do you know how to pick a good quality ham? Your butcher could give you a few pointers. He'd tell you, for example that a good ham is short and plump. The skin is free from wrinkles and coarse pores. A good smoked ham is a pretty rich-pink color, well marbled and has a small bone. You can spot a poor quality ham because of the uneven color and large bone.

Give Tips on Planning And Packing for Trip

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)

Women are traveling more and more every year. Some women are experienced travelers; others may be making their first trip this summer. Here are some suggestions for the beginner on planning and packing for a trip.

Important to planning is to be sure you can manage the trip comfortably on your budget and time. Notify in advance the friends you wish to see en route.

You can take some tips from the expert traveler. She plans her wardrobe as carefully as possible, keeping it to a minimum. She puts her finances in good order and carries traveler's checks on trips of any length. Before leaving she puts in her purse a list of all names and addresses she will need.

When it comes to packing, confine yourself to luggage which, in a pinch, you can carry yourself. For stopovers carry an overnight case. Or you can pack these articles on the very top in your suitcase. Don't overestimate your needs; too many clothes are a burden.

Put heavy items on the bottom of the suitcase and things first used on top. Carry berets or little soft hats. Put toilet articles in small jars and bottles. Carry some form of identification in your suitcase. Take with you a clothes brush and a mending kit.

With a few well-chosen clothes in good combinations of color and harmonizing accessories, you will be dressed right for the occasion. Dark prints, soft finished wools, shantung, fabrics with a crease-resistant finish, and nylons are good travelers.

A shantung or crepe convertible jacket dress is a good choice to wear for all through the day to informal evening occasions. Non-wilting voile or nylon sheer dresses are excellent for hot days. They require a minimum of packing space.

Make allowances for a temperamental weather man.

You'll need a tailored suit of summer weight fabric or lightweight wool, a short jacket, or a duster for cool evenings and rainy days.

Plan to make your accessories play a variety of roles and take ones that go with more than one costume. Choose hat, shoes, and gloves that can be worn with your suit or jacket dress. Comfortable walking shoes are a must if you want to enjoy your vacation. Leave room for interesting costume jewelry, belts or scarves that you may want to buy as you travel.

LONDON. - (INS) - German swimmer Herbert Klein has bettered the world 200 meters breaststroke record with a time of 2 minutes 27.3 seconds at Munich. Official world record is held by the American Joe Verdeur with 2 minutes 28.3 seconds.
